D2Xchange President Nancy J. Sauer has been nominated for an Outstanding Women in Business Award. Sponsored by the Denver Business Journal, the award recognizes influential business women in the Metropolitan Denver area who have achieved great success through leadership in business and community contribution.

Nancy has more than 20 years of experience in sales, business development and general management as well as significant expertise in data and information management, product administration, and partnership development.

“As president of D2Xchange, Nancy inspires our organization with her passion for leveraging technology to make information available at the precise point our customers need it to make crucial business decisions,” said D2Xchange Chairman and Co-Owner Graham J. McClean. “Nancy’s nomination, which was submitted by individuals not associated with D2Xchange, is a mark of the respect and admiration Nancy’s peers feel she deserves for her leadership at D2Xchange and in the Denver business community at large,”
